Contents

Theme issue: Understanding self and other: from origins to disorders

INTRODUCTION

Understanding self and others: from origins to disorders
C Catmur, ES Cross and H Over 20150066

ARTICLES

The psychology of primate cooperation and competition: a call for realigning research agendas
M Schmelz and J Call 20150067

Psychological autonomy and hierarchical relatedness as organizers of developmental pathways
H Keller 20150070

Homo imitans? Seven reasons why imitation couldn’t possibly be associative
C Heyes 20150069

Why developmental psychology is incomplete without comparative and cross-cultural perspectives
M Nielsen and D Haun 20150071

The origins of belonging: social motivation in infants and young children
H Over 20150072

Group bias in cooperative norm enforcement
K McAuliffe and Y Dunham 20150073

The role of self—other distinction in understanding others’ mental and emotional states: neurocognitive mechanisms in children and adults
N Steinbeis 20150074

Self—other control processes in social cognition: from imitation to empathy
M de Guzman, G Bird, MJ Banissy and C Catmur 20150079

Mechanisms and development of self—other distinction in dyads and groups
SJ Milward and N Sebanz 20150076

Empathy as a driver of prosocial behaviour: highly conserved neurobehavioural mechanisms across species
J Decety, IB-A Bartal, F Uzefovsky and A Knaf-Noam 20150077

The shaping of social perception by stimulus and knowledge cues to human animacy
ES Cross, R Ramsey, R Liepelt, W Prinz and AF de C Hamilton 20150075

Gazing at me: the importance of social meaning in understanding direct-gaze cues
AF de C Hamilton 20150080

Towards a second-person neuropsychiatry
L Schilbach 20150081

Social cognitive impairment and autism: what are we trying to explain?
S Leekam 20150082

From shared to distinct self—other representations in empathy: evidence from neurotypical function and socio-cognitive disorders
C Lamm, H Bukowski and G Silani 20150083